max(x, y)

Description

Calculates the maximum of two numbers.

Parameters

x: the first number, any data type

y: the second number, any data type

Returns

The larger of the two parameter values.

Example

sensorVal = max(sensorVal, 20); // assigns sensorVal to the larger of sensorVal or 20
// (effectively ensuring that it is at least 20)
```

Note

Perhaps counter-intuitively, `max()` is often used to constrain the lower end of a variable's range, while `min()` is used to constrain the upper end of the range.
